Montello's southern side is very windy, while the northern one is characterized mainly by breezes.

In the last twenty years, snowfalls have much decreased: it snows nearly only above 800mt; the rare snowfalls occurring only last a few hours, and the snow disappears after one day on two, and we can rarely witness an exceptionally abundant snowfall, which is however, no longer visible after a week.

The image contains four handwritten marks. At the top center is a signature consisting of a loop followed by a horizontal line. Below and to the left is a signature with a large, sweeping initial 'M'. To the right of the 'M' signature are two initials: a circled 'B' and a stylized 'R'.
